LETTER FROM THE CHAIRS

2025 was a year that reminded us why the work of Optometry Giving Sight matters — and why the community behind it is unlike any other.

Through the extraordinary generosity of our donors, Optometry Giving Sight awarded nearly $1 million USD in grants in 2025.

- We allocated 24 grants to 21 organizations — for projects delivering both immediate relief and long-term, sustainable solutions for uncorrected refractive error around the world.
- Over the years, OGS has funded projects in more than 70 countries, with each one representing a community where access to eye care is now available.

We watch with pride as the 14 optometry schools OGS has helped establish continue to take root and grow. From Haiti to Nicaragua, Malawi to Mozambique, these institutions are training the next generation of optometrists in the regions that need them most, ensuring that the impact of our donors' generosity outlasts any single program or grant cycle.

This year also brought a milestone we will long remember. In October, OGS hosted the inaugural Brien Holden Founders Award Dinner in Boston, bringing together members of the optometry community to celebrate the enduring legacy of Professor Brien Holden and to recognize the first recipients of the Brien Holden Founders Award: Dr. Greg Pearl and CooperVision. It was a fitting tribute to the man whose vision gave rise to this organization, as well as a reminder of the responsibility we all share to carry that vision forward.

We were equally proud to celebrate the achievements of our donor community this year. Queensway Optometric Centre in Ontario, Canada, led North America in the World Sight Day Challenge, raising an impressive $10,900. Optical Image of Saskatchewan, Canada, rallied their entire community to win our first-ever WSDC Thumbs-Up Throwdown. Practices, optometry schools, and corporations from coast to coast showed up with creativity, generosity, and heart.

Thank you for your contributions to the valuable work of Optometry Giving Sight. Because of you, the world sees better.

A CONVERSATION WITH EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR DONNA J. MIKULECKY

What moment from 2025 stands out most to you personally?

The Brien Holden Founders Award Dinner in Boston was unlike anything we've done before. We brought together members of the optometry community to celebrate the legacy of Professor Brien Holden — a true pioneer in global eye care — and to recognize the inaugural recipients of the Brien Holden Founders Award: Dr. Greg Pearl and CooperVision. It was a heartfelt, meaningful evening, and I think everyone in that room felt the weight of what Professor Holden built and the responsibility we all share to carry it forward. We're proud to have created that moment, and proud to let it stand as the singular, defining tribute it was.

The numbers from 2025 are remarkable. Can you walk us through them?

We awarded nearly $1 million USD in grants, giving 24 grants to 21 organizations. Those went to fund projects designed to deliver both immediate relief and long-term, sustainable solutions to uncorrected refractive error around the world. That's the profession showing up in a very real way for people who have no other options, and I think it speaks volumes about the level of commitment that folks in this space have to their fellow humans.

“We have a refreshed team, a sharpened strategy, and a donor and partner community that continues to show up with extraordinary generosity.”

DONNA MIKULECKY

Any other highlights you'd like to share?

There are a couple that I'm particularly proud of. OGS Chair Dr. Susan Cooper was named the recipient of the World Optometry Council's 2025 Distinguished Service Award in Memory of Dr. Uduak Udom. This is obviously a recognition that speaks to the caliber of leadership guiding this organization. And we were gratified to see a number of our corporate and professional partners renew their commitments to OGS in 2025, a reflection of the trust this community has placed in our work and the relationships we've built over many years. For our part, we are committed to being more transparent and communicative than ever before. We've stepped up the cadence of our newsletter, which is now monthly; we're much more active on social media; and there are exciting updates coming to our website as well.

It feels like 2026 is a year of transition for OGS. How do you see it?

I'd call it a year of evolution — and honestly, a very good one. Yes, there's been change. We welcomed Emma Alvarez Gibson as our new Director of Marketing and Communications, and Blake Davis as Director of Development. They bring exactly the kind of drive and perspective that their roles call for.

On the board side, we welcomed Karen Walsh and Javier Prada-López, and said goodbye to other dedicated members who concluded their service. Through all of it, the commitment to our mission has never wavered. If anything, it's stronger.

What else does 2026 look like from where you're standing?

It looks like momentum! We have a refreshed team, a sharpened strategy, and a donor and partner community that continues to show up with extraordinary generosity. The need is still vast — more than 1.1 billion people around the world lack access to basic eye care — but so is our capacity to meet it. We're not slowing down. We're just getting started.

The World Council of Optometry has been awarded a grant to expand Optometry Program in Advocacy and Leadership, its globally recognized initiative that equips optometrists with the skills to lead sustainable vision care advocacy programs in their home countries. This year's cycle introduces a new post-graduate track for alumni, offering advanced seminars and mentorship to deepen the impact of the program.

The program is a 12-week virtual course that brings together optometrists from across six global regions. Through expert-led sessions, personalized mentorship, and a capstone advocacy project, participants gain the tools to influence policy, strengthen public health systems, and champion equitable access to eye care.

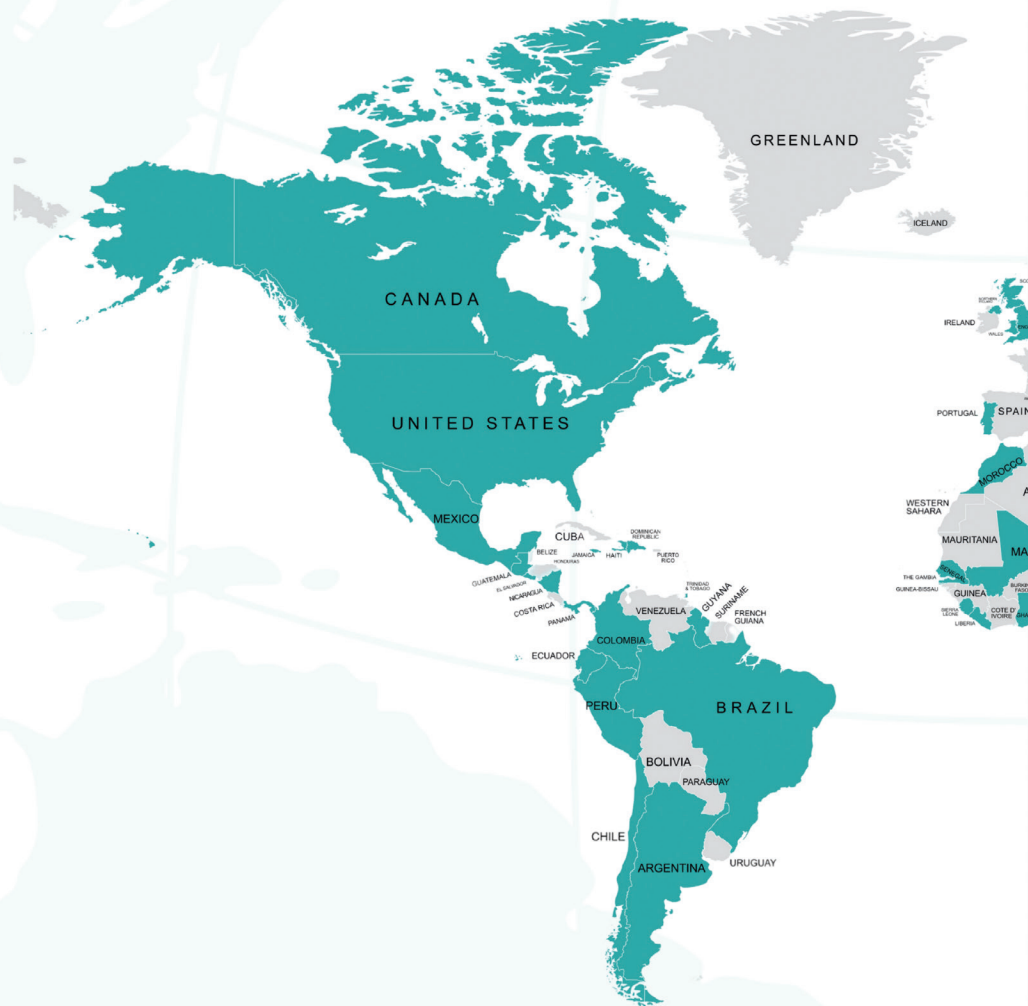

Each of these 24 projects is a commitment that extends well beyond 2025. A child who can now read the board. A farmer who can work without fear of losing his livelihood to darkness. A teacher who gets to stay in the profession she loves. Each is a direct result of the community that decided to show up for the world.

Preventable blindness and vision impairment are, by definition, problems we already know how to solve. Nearly $1 million in grants is proof that we're solving it, and that the pace is picking up.

None of this is possible without you. Every dollar raised, every grant awarded, every life changed in 2025 reflects what becomes possible when this community gives with intention. We're grateful. And we're not done.

DONATIONS AT WORK

CASE STUDY: A LIFE TRANSFORMED

For two weeks, 28-year-old Ismail Ahmed Adaawe from Mogadishu, Somalia struggled in silence following a bike accident.

He wore dark glasses not for style, but to survive the intense pain of an untreated corneal abrasion. Lacking the means to pay for care, he felt his only option was to wait and hope for the best. “I couldn’t afford the medication,” he explained, “so I just waited.”

No one should have to wait in pain. Ismail finally found the relief he needed through a comprehensive examination and proper treatment—provided at no cost to him, thanks to a project funded in part by Optometry Giving Sight (OGS).

Ismail’s story represents countless others in the Somali community who often suffer in silence. Donations from people like you enabled us to support Mission for Vision’s Himilo Eye Trust vision center. The Himilo Eye Trust center exists to ensure that financial limitations never stand between a patient and their vision, providing a place where every individual can be seen, treated, and respected.

CASE STUDY: THE JOY OF READING, RESTORED

For Eunice, reading had always been one of life's great pleasures. Gradually, it became a challenge that took more than it gave.

The 36-year-old from Akpabuyo, Cross River State began noticing her vision slipping — first occasional fatigue, then persistent blur that made fine print nearly impossible and daily tasks increasingly exhausting. Without access to specialized eye care nearby, she had few options and little hope of improvement.

An OGS-funded Optometry Education Project changed that. The initiative, based at Arthur Jarvis University, works to strengthen local optometry capacity by equipping clinics with modern diagnostic equipment, bringing quality eye care directly to communities that previously had none. Eunice visited one of the supported clinics, received a comprehensive eye examination at no cost, and was fitted with corrective glasses at a price she could manage.

"The OGS project made a difference," she says. "I received a free comprehensive eye consultation and affordable corrective glasses. Now I can actually enjoy reading again."

For Eunice, it's a simple but profound change. The world is back in focus.
