

MEET ASAD

At 13, Asad was falling behind in school. He was struggling to see the board, losing confidence, and not fully understanding why. A vision screening through an OGS-supported project caught what everyone else had missed: a significant distance vision impairment in both eyes. After a comprehensive exam and a pair of properly prescribed glasses, Asad's vision corrected to 20/20, and the change was immediate. He could see clearly, participate in class, and engage with his studies in a way he never had before. His story is a reminder of what early detection makes possible, and why getting glasses into the hands of people who need them is a life-changing event.

MEET JUSTINA

Justina is a farmer who lives in Jukwa Bremang, Ghana. Until recently, the close-up work her livelihood depends on had become increasingly difficult to see. When a community vision assessment came to her area for the first time, she showed up and had her eyes examined. She left with a pair of glasses. The difference was immediate, and now she can go back to working the land. Scan the QR code to see Justina tell her story.

MEET KEVIN

Kevin rode his e-bike four miles to reach one of Healing California's free Pop-Up Vision Clinics earlier this year, and that single journey changed the way he sees the world. For years, Kevin had been unable to afford proper eyeglasses. He relied on cheap pairs from the dollar store, glasses that broke easily and never adequately addressed his vision needs. What Kevin actually needed were bifocals, lenses that would allow him to see clearly both up close and at a distance, but that level of care had always been financially out of reach. At Healing California's clinic, Kevin received a comprehensive vision exam and was fitted with prescription bifocals at no cost. For the first time in his adult life, he has glasses that are built for him, durable, accurate, and life changing.
